DAY DEVOTED TO HEROES

A DAY AS IT WERE OF THE SOLDIERS' RECESSIONAL.

A Brilliant Address by a Pennsylvania Soldier, General James A. Beaver.

The Post Room on last Sunday afternoon was crowded with veterans and their friends to listen to the sermon of Rev. Dr. Luther Kuhlman, from text Exodus 32, verse 32. "Yet, Now if thou wilt forgive their sin and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book which thou hast written," and that patriotism was the theme which is willing to sacrifice ones own life for the good of the people. It was listened to with great attention. Memorial day yesterday resembled very much other Memorial Days, in the crowded Diamond and streets, in the throng of carriages coming into town in morning and leaving afternoon, in the decorating of graves of colored soldiers, in the parade led by the chief marshal and his assistant, in the music of the band, in the organizations in the parade and the distinguished visitors in carriages and the hundreds of school children led by their teachers with arms and hands laden with flowers, in the gift of the flowers on the graves of the known and unknown falling from hands of children, veterans and Sons of Veterans. These Memorial Days have another meaning as time separates the veterans from what they accomplished—A Soldier's Recessional—the message of which is conveyed in a recent poem.

Down past the altar, bright with flowers they tread
The aisles' death which in sleep their comrades dead
Keep bivouac after their red strife
Their own ranks thinner growing as they march
Into the shadows of the narrow arch
Which hides the last line from this life.

The program as arranged was carried out to the letter.

Program.

The parade was in charge of Dr. C. F. Goldsborough, Chief Marshal, Dr. Henry Stewart, assistant.
The column formed an Chambersburg street with right resting on Centre Square and moved promptly at 1.30 o'clock p. m. in the following order:
G. A. Band.
A platoon of Camp of Sons of Veterans.
Orator of the day, Gen. James A. Beaver, and guests in carriages.
Patriotic Organizations.
Sons of Veterans.
Spanish War Veterans.
Post 9 G. A. R. and visiting Comrades and Old Veterans in charge of Com. P. L. Houck.

AT THE CEMETERY.

Dirge by the G. A. Band.
Ceremony by the G. A. R.
Strewing of flowers by the pupils of the schools.
G. A. R. Comrades decorating graves of unknown west of the monument and Sons of Veterans the plot of the same east of the monument.

AT THE ROSTRUM.

Chaplain H. W. McKnight presided.
Music.
Prayer by Dr. Kuhlman.
Oration by Gen. James A. Beaver.
Music by G. A. Band.
Benediction.
When the veterans finally came to the rostrum, about which a great throng had gathered, they listened to the message of the orator of the day, a one legged soldier of the great Commonwealth, General James A. Beaver, once Governor of the State and for the last ten years and ten years more to come one of the Superior Court Judges of the State. He said:

The American of this generation who can stand on this spot, in this presence, without a thrill of patriotic emotion or the uplift of stimulating thought, must lack knowledge or be devoid of both heart and mind.

To those of us who took no active part in the exciting events which took place nearly forty-two years ago in the region all about us, and whose knowledge thereof is gained from information obtained subsequently, there is much of inspiration and uplift in the scene itself. What must it be, therefore, to the men, whether clad in blue or gray, who took part in the events themselves? They close their eyes upon the present peaceful surroundings and can see again the hurry and rush and destruction of horrid war. They place their hands upon their ears to shut out present peaceful sounds of nature and man's device and can hear again the reverberations through these valleys of the thunders which were emitted from the crests of the cannon-crowned hills plainly in our sight. Perhaps a rheumatic twing may recall the sting of a minnie, or the laceration caused by a ragged piece of shell or the dull, sickening sensation of a solid shot as it did its work of dismemberment and physical ruin. Whether he who thus recalls the scene came with gallant John Buford and his cavalry on the evening of the 30th of June, through scenes as quiet and peaceful as those which surround us today, or whether with the first and eleventh corps he deployed with his comrades on the advance lines so splendidly held by the first, or ineffectually extended by the eleventh, on the 1st of July; whether he advanced with Sickles and the third corps on the 2nd or hurried with the second and fifth corps to relieve their outnumbered and over-matched comrades of the third; whether he joined in the gallant and successful effort to re-take the rifle pits on Culp's hill, temporarily abandoned by the twelfth corps to render service in other parts of the field and which had been occupied by the Confederates in its absence; whether he witnessed and withstood the magnificent charge of Longstreet's column of attack, or took part in the flanking movement which demoralized and made success impossible in that memorable charge; whether, with Merritt, Farnsworth and Kilpatrick on the right or with Gregg on the left, he fought with the cavalry to protect the flanks of the Union Army, no matter where he rendered help or how he performed his service, or what the measure of his efficiency in reaching the grand climax of victory which crowned the Union arms, it is enough for any survivor of the battle who wore the blue to say I was at Gettysburg.

As we join in the general observance of Memorial Day, now so generally commemorated throughout the entire length and breadth of our land, the lessons which come to us from the observance of the day and what it commemorates are, of course, practically the same everywhere. There are some peculiar lessons, however, which come to us as we stand in this place, surrounded by the graves of the men who gave the evidence of the full measure of their devotion to duty by yielding up their lives a sacrifice to their country in the great battle which, so far as human ken can determine, settled the fate of the nation, which may perhaps be of sufficient present concern to justify their discussion.

I will not detain you today, however with any attempt at a full and final analysis of the lessons which we may profitably gather from the tragic events which were here enacted and the dramatic scenes, here witnessed more than two score years ago. These lessons have been taught and enforced and reiterated in so many ways, on so many occasions, that they already have the familiarity of twice-told tales. Be it mine, therefore to hint at a very few of them and to emphasize one which the present period in our national life and the present occasion seems to render specially appropriate.

1. Naturally the first and most obvious lesson is the purely military one which grows out of the strategy which preceded and the grand tactics of the battle itself. Meade had a striking advantage in having, and Lee was quite as much at a disadvantage in not having with him, the eyes of his army, the cavalry. The strategic position seized by Howard and approved by Hancock on his arrival gave, for the purposes of battle, the great advantage which the Confederates had throughout the war in general, the inside and short line. The familiar fish-hook formation, which the Union army naturally and almost necessarily assumed, enabled Meade to re-enforce the endangered parts of his line by troops from other points less threatened, with celerity and comparative safety. What this advantage meant was illustrated by the withdrawal of a part of the twelfth corps from Culp's Hill on the evening of the 2nd and its return the same night or the next morning.

It is difficult to tell what the effect of modern tactics and the so-called improved death-dealing machines of modern warfare might have been, if they had been in use during this battle. Possibly the results would have been as advantageous for the one side as the other. If Lee had been in constant and instant communication by telephone with every part of his extended line, it is possible that a simultaneous advance along the entire length of it on the evening of the second day might have been as advantageous to him as would the modern machine guns have been advantageous to Meade. It is needless to speculate upon this subject, but these are simple illustrations of the changed methods of conducting the warfare of today from those which prevailed upon this field. Notwithstanding these changes, Gettysburg will be sought and studied for many years to come, as the best preserved and most strikingly illustrated of the battlefields of the world.

2. A second obvious lesson, and one which finds a more perfect illustration here than on any other of our great battlefields which I can recall, is that, however man may plan and however armies may march, there are larger plans than those which man may make, there are grander movements than those in which the armies of earth may take part which are to be worked out and finally consummated under the over-ruling allwise providence of the Almighty himself. It has been many times said that it was the plan of neither Lee nor Meade to fight a battle at Gettysburg, and a few days before it occurred it seemed to be about the most unlikely place for such a battle. Lee, without his cavalry, had his army scattered practically from the Potomac to the Susquehanna. Meade preceded and flanked by his cavalry, had his army thoroughly in hand, and yet so timely was the arrival of the detached divisions of Lee that upon the first day the Army of the Potomac could not even deploy into line of battle without having its right flank over-reached and enveloped with every new development. The ifs and the might-have-beens which come to us with such force and frequency in the discussion of events after they have transpired are all very well as pure speculation and may possibly serve a good purpose as pointing a lesson for the future, but they have no place in God's economy, for He sees the end from the beginning, and making the moves as He does upon both sides, the game is always His. Gettysburg was not a great, that is, not an overwhelming victory for the Union cause, and not an exterminating defeat for that of the Confederacy. There was great discontent and some hot displeasure that it was not made so; but, after all, I think we can see now very clearly that neither the one side nor the other was ready for a great victory nor a crushing defeat, and that it was absolutely essential to a lasting peace, to a restoration of the Union and to a substantial unity of aim and purpose such as the country had never known in all its history, the dawnings of which we think we can, see today, that we should reach a point where, on the one hand, nothing except what was absolutely essential should be required to be conceded and, on the other, the dream of independence should be surrendered and the final destruction of slavery recognized. It is impossible for the finite mind to grasp the plans and purposes of the Infinite, but the farther we are removed from the time they were uttered the more do Mr. Lincoln's weighty utterances, as contained in his second inaugural, seem to have the force of prophecy:

"If we shall suppose that American slavery is one of those offenses which, in the providence of God, must needs come, but which, having continued through his appointed time, he now wills to remove, and that he gives to both North and South this terrible war, as the woe due to those by whom the offense came, shall we discern therein any departure from those Divine attributes which the believers in a living God always ascribe to Him? Fondly do we hope—fervently do we pray—that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continue until all the wealth piled by the bondman's two hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another drawn with the sword, as was said three thousand years ago, so still it must be said: 'The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.'"

Before reaching the real subject of my address, let me mention a third lesson, as preparatory to it, which I think ought to be emphasized even more than it has been. Gettysburg and all for which it stands is the common heritage of all our people. Was there heroism here? It was American heroism. Was there devotion here? It was devotion to principle,—no less honest, no less sincere, no less profound on the part of the men who wore the gray than on the part of those who wore the blue. Was there endurance here? Tell me who excelled in endurance? Can you tell me, after seeing it or after reading it, that the men who charged across yonder valley from Seminary Ridge to Cemetery Ridge had less endurance than those who withstood the shock of that mighty charge? Let not him who wore the blue judge and condemn the man who wore the gray, for in sincerity of conviction, in devotion to duty, in endurance and in all the manly virtues that tend to make men equal, there was no difference.

And this brings me to the subject which I specially wish to emphasize for a little, as appropriate to the time and the occasion, and that is

The Lesson of Equality Which the Battle Teaches.

Equality cannot be predicated of unity. A thing cannot be equal to itself. It must be equal to something outside of itself; and, therefore, we must assume, for practical purposes, although it was denied theoretically, and for purposes of statecraft and diplomacy, that the government was not one and indivisible. However we may theorize upon the subject and however discuss the question of the unity and indivisibility of the government, it was, nevertheless, true that on this field there were practically 94,000 men maintaining the affirmative of that proposition and at least 80,000 who as strenuously denied it, and of this aggregate number approximately 43,438 were killed, wounded or missing in maintaining their convictions. There must have been some substantial basis of belief which would lead men to disregard the ties of home and the considerations of personal safety and throw away, with utter abandon, life itself, in order to prove that what they believed was true.

There must have been something more than fancy, something more than a mere whim, to compel Col. Robt. E. Lee, of the United States Army, as he stood upon the veranda of his magnificent home at Arlington, Va., and looked at the flag of his country floating from its capitol, to turn his back upon it and espouse the cause of his native state which, by the vote of its representatives, endeavored, as far as in them lay, to sever the connection between that state and the United States of which it formed a part. The more we learn of the character of Gen. Lee and the more closely we observe his conduct after the surrender of his army at Appomattox, the more we can understand the motives which influenced him and those who like him severed their allegiance to their country and turned their back upon its flag, which they undoubtedly loved, and cast their lot with what was at the best an experiment and what, to many of them, was from the first a doubtful one. Lee severed the associations of a lifetime. He surrendered the practical certainty of the command of the Army of the United States and went out from his home not knowing whether he went, uncertain as to the way by which he would journey, and least of all assured of what the final result would be. Was ever a decision so momentous more reluctantly reached? Have we fairly weighed and given due credit for the considerations of duty, untenable as we regard them, which compelled such a decision?

Nearly seventeen years ago, as the representative of the Society of the Army of the Potomac, I had the honor, in the discharge of what was to me a most agreeable duty, to welcome to this field, as the guests of the Army of the Potomac, the survivors of the Army of Northern Virginia. I endeavored to discharge that duty with a warmth of feeling which I had long felt for the people of the South and which was never seriously disturbed in all the stress and strain and havoc of the cruel war which, for a time, separated the people of our different sections the one from the other, and strained to the breaking point the bonds which united them.

As appropriate to and paving the way for which I wish further to say, allow me to quote the closing part of that address:

"I cannot particularize as to the questions which we face, the great questions of public policy which we must settle in this generation. I see a grand future for my country. Do I say 'my country'? Your country, our country, north and south. I see a great development of her material resources: I see a grand upbuilding of her intellectual power: I see a broad extension of her influence among the nations of the earth: I see the white sails of her commerce again dotting every sea; I see her glorious flag floating at the topmast in every harbor of the world. I see the principals upon which she is founded extending, and deepening, and widening, for the benefit of mankind: I see the glorious Christianity, which underlies and characterizes her civilization, carried by human lips of her commissioning throughout the world for the healing of the nations. And as this vision arises before me, and enchains my thought, and enwraps my desire, the question is not 'What of the past?' but 'What of the future?' How shall we meet its responsibilities? How shall we answer its demands? How shall we rise to the height of its great possibilities? O, my countrymen of the gray and of the blue, and you young men who wore neither gray nor blue, these are the questions about which we should be concerned; and, because the consideration of them is pressing and imminent we who wore the blue have invited you men who wore the gray to join us here on this historic field. We welcome you because we need you; we welcome you because you need us; we welcome you because you together must enter in and possess this future, and transmit this heritage to the oncoming generations. Are we ready? If so, 'Let the dead past bury its dead.'"

We have realized in part what was therein outlined for the future of our country. In order to the more complete realization of the dreams and the fuller fruition of the hopes therein expressed, the cordial co-operation of all our people, north and south, and east and west, is absolutely essential—a co-operation based not upon compulsion but upon mutual esteem and forbearing love. Those who are traveling upon the circumference of a circle approach each other as they approach the center. When, therefore, a great crisis or a great question arises which appeals to our universal love of liberty or affects the welfare of the entire people, we forget our minor differences and come so near as to join hands in working out the general good. So it was in our Spanish-American war. The men who had turned their back upon the old flag, under what they regarded as a call of duty, returned with loving alacrity to its defense. So it is that in the prosecution of the great commercial enterprise, the completion of which seems to be the pressing duty imposed upon this generation, the people and their representatives alike seem to drop all minor differences and unite cordially and enthusiastically in bringing to a speedy consummation the great passageway which shall make our two great oceans practically one.

Coming back now to the lesson of equality which I specially wish to enforce, let me speak of two phases of it which, it seems to me, should be emphasized at this time: 1st, the equality of obligation, and 2d, the equality of opportunity.

Mr. Lincoln recognized in the magnificent utterance which has been quoted, the responsibility of the entire country for what he called "the offense of American slavery." The people of our country outside the limits of the so-called slave states seemed to feel, or at least acted as if they felt, that, when the abolition of slavery had been officially declared and the war had been fought to a finish and the armies of the Confederacy in the field had surrendered, their responsibility for the offense had ceased. It was the attitude of the Pharisee of long ago, "Lord, I thank Thee that I am not as other men," and especially as these slaveholders. Kipling speaks of the white man's duty. If we of the North—I don't like to use that term—touched, even with the tip of our little finger, the edge of the burden cast upon the country by the complete revolution of the industrial conditions which prevailed in the slaveholding states, we have taken great credit to ourselves for so doing and have looked upon the effort as purely gratuitous and as undeserved charity. All the people of this country were responsible for slavery. As long as it was profitable in the non-slaveholding states their people shared in the profit. When the Constitution of the United States was adopted, all who voted for its adoption ratified slavery as it existed, because of its recognition therein contained. We assented more or less generally to the various compromises by which and through which the area of slave territory was extended. We cannot consistently shield ourselves now from the demands which the results of the war and subsequent events have made obligatory upon us. The people of the slaveholding states were not only impoverished by the war but were subsequently despoiled by the results of our policy of reconstruction. They have been left to care for the maimed and broken men who endeavored to establish the independence of the Confederacy and have, in addition, been allowed, in such fashion as they could, to uplift or attempt to uplift a race degraded and besotted by two hundred and fifty years of slavery. My countrymen, the obligation, so far as the effort to prepare those who are made free by the dread arbitrament of war, for freedom, for self-support, for citizenship, was equally binding upon us. Has the burden been equally borne? Here and there throughout the South, brave men and women are making heroic and strenuous efforts to uplift the descendants of a race of slaves. It is not an easy task. It will require generations to accomplish, with even moderate success, the stupendous task which they have undertaken. Here and there some noble philanthropist or some small body of far-seeing lovers of their kind have espoused the cause of the weak and have endeavored to help bear the burdens which have been so unequally borne in the past. The greatest body of our people, however, are indifferent to the demands of obligation in this respect and allow our own people, citizens of our own country, heroically devoted to the honor of our flag, to stagger under the burdens which we, as much as they are bound, in honor and conscience, to bear. The appeals of philanthropy reach but few and the claims of the Christian religion which are pressed by all our churches, for the amelioration of the race for which they seek to make special provision, are either unheeded or receive but scant consideration. For the sake of our country, for the sake of our over-burdened countrymen, whose representative showed themselves our equals upon this field, for the sake of the race, whose welfare is our welfare and which must be lifted up or which will undoubtedly drag us down, for the sake of the Christian religion which we profess, let us acknowledge the burden of obligation which rests upon us equally with those who more directly face the great problem which must be solved for our common benefit, and, with the acknowledgment of the obligation, resolutely and heartily join in the discharge of the duty which it entails. It might be profitable to discuss the question as to the manner in which this obligation is to be met and its kindred duty discharged, but there is no time for that today. It may be seriously doubted whether we give due credit to the people, who are almost hopelessly endeavoring to carry this burden, for any high aim or honest purpose in their effort to cope with the great question which confronts them. It is easy to criticize. It is cheap to give advice. What we need is charity in our judgment, helpfulness in our attitude and a resolute determination to share in the burden-bearing as we share in the obligation.

I hope to live to see the day—which may God, in his good providence, speed—when there shall be no such line of division even in imagination as North and South in our churches or in the thought of people. What God hath joined together by His eternal hills, by rivers and mountains running north and south, which man, in his impotence has vainly tried to sever, let no future effort of man try to put asunder. And let all remembrance of such effort, except as a mere memory, cease from among us.

LIGHTNING STRUCK BARN

STEAM THRASHER CAUSED FIRE TO BARN ON SAME SITE.

Early Potatoes in Bloom—But no Potato Bugs—Gashed Himself While Cutting Timber.

Arendtsville, May 22.—During the heavy thunder gust last Wednesday evening, lightning struck Andrew J. Bittingers new bank barn, in Menallen township, and set the one gable end on fire, but luckily the scaffold erected by the carpenters had not been taken down and aided Abraham McCaslin, the tenant, to get there in time with a few buckets of water and put out the blaze before it got beyond control. The barn is built on the site where the old one was burnt last fall, set on fire from a spark of a steam thrasher.

SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

Buchanan Valley, May 22.—Dr. Hemminger of Carlisle, and Dr. Holland of Fayetteville, performed an operation upon Catharine Cole, little daughter of A. W. Cole, for tuberculosis of the hip on Monday, May 15. She is doing very well at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Taylor of Altoona, are visiting their parents in this place.

Miss Rebecca Young has returned from Altoona and Blandburg where she spent the winter and spring.

Rev. Jacob Bender and son of Mummaburg, passed here on their way to Chambersburg to attend the funeral of a Menonite minister.

Miss Minnie Kane and brother Carl, spent a day in the valley last week.

Mrs. John Stover and three children Grace, Mary and John, spent last last week at John F. Cole's.

Chas. Kuhn and Thomas J. Cole have returned from Philadelphia where they were engaged in the cold storage of fruits, and especially apples, during the winter and spring.

Mrs. Lizzie McCleary and daughter Mahel, and Harry Gilbert, wife and children and brother spent Sunday at Geo. Shepard's, their father.

James Irwin and niece, Miss Mary Irwin, spent a few days at Wm. J. Irwin's in Gettysburg, last week.

Bark peeling and hauling is in order.

Snakes are unusually plenty this spring. Quite a number have been killed in this vicinity.

Your correspondent spent several days in Fayetteville, the guest of Edward Long, Esq., and wife.

Albert Strasbaugh was home over Saturday and Sunday from the C. V. S. N. S. at Shippensburg, Pa. s. c. s.

ATTENDANCE AT LOVE FEAST

East Berlin, May 22.—On Saturday and Sunday a love feast was held by the German Baptists at Mummert's Meeting House between Abbottstown and East Berlin. The crowd on Saturday night and Sunday morning was estimated at over 2000 people. Our town was full of people on Saturday and Sunday, most of them being with relatives, friends and acquaintances, but our hotels did quite a good business. The Shaffer House had 12 for dinner yesterday, the Sunday House 17 for supper Saturday evening and 25 for dinner on Sunday and P. P. Eisenhart had 10 from Clear Springs yesterday.

Among those from York who were here were Henry Moul and wife, Philip and John Myers and Miss Minnie Myers, Mrs. Spangler and two daughters, Peter Jacobs, son and daughter, Martin Smith and wife, Amos Jacobs and wife, Charles Bohn, Michael Brown and wife, Mr. Grim and wife. Yesterday morning there was a light frost in these parts.

Early corn planting is up and farmers are working it already. There are farmers who have not yet planted all their corn.

A. A. Gruver is out west for another car load of horses.

Mrs. Julian Grim, nee Hileman, wife of Peter Grim of Paradise township, York county, died on May 18 aged 78 years, 10 months and 1 day. She was a consistent member of the Reformed Church. Her pastor was attending Synod and Rev. D. H. Baker preached the funeral sermon with interment at Mummert Meeting House on last Saturday. E. L. S.

AN AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Sores Covered Neck and Cheeks—Itched Day and Night—Nothing Did Me Any Good—Was Growing Worse.

CURED BY CUTICURA AT COST OF $4.50

Miss Nellie Vander Wiele, of Lakeside, N. Y., writing under date of April 18, 1904, says: "I do wish you would publish this letter in the newspapers, so that others suffering as I have may see it and be helped. I suffered for many months with an awful skin disease, sores covering my ears, neck, and cheeks. Scabs would form and they would swell, and itch day and night. Then they would break open and bleed and matter run out. I had tried many different remedies, but none of them did me any good. I was growing worse when I tried the Cuticura Remedies. The first application helped me, and when I had used two cakes of Cuticura Soap, three boxes of Cuticura Ointment, and three bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, I was completely cured."

TORTURING, DISFIGURING Humours, Eczemas, Itchings, and Chafings Cured by Cuticura

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurement, as in pimples and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter, and salt rheum, all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills are such stands proven beyond all doubt by the testimony of the civilized world.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills are sold throughout the world. Foster Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Proprietors, Boston. Send for "How to Cure Skin Humours."

MORE LAWS AND SALARIES

Regulating Hours Per Week and Day For Women and Minors.

Another batch of new laws comes from the printer, from act 222 to 243, a large proportion creating new offices with good salaries. Among others the following:

An act establishing a State Highway Department and providing that upon petition signed by the owners of a majority of the assessed valuation of real estate of any township it shall be the duty of supervisors to petition county commissioners for a state road. If supervisors refuse or neglect, then petition may be presented to Court to compel supervisors to petition county commissioners for road, and if county commissioners do not act the Court can make an order compelling them to go ahead, and when road is completed according to the provisions of the law the county pays one eighth and the township one eighth and the state six-eighths.

An act to provide for registration of all births and deaths in state and new officers to be called registrars are created.

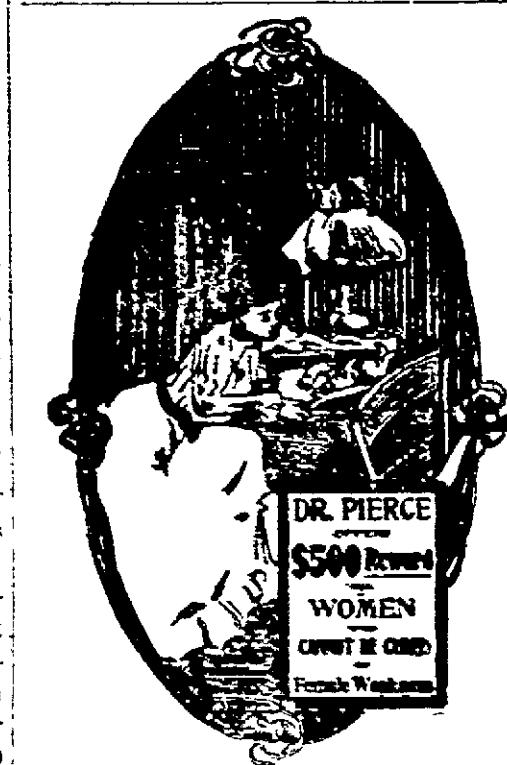

An act authorizing the Attorney General upon request of a President Judge to employ attorneys to represent the commonwealth in criminal proceedings.

An act prohibiting the employment of children under 14 years of age in factories and that no minor under 16 and no female shall be employed for a longer period than 60 hours in one week, nor for a longer period than 12 hours in any one day and no minor under 16 between hours of 9 p. m. and 6 a. m. No minor under 16 is to be allowed to clean or oil machinery while in motion and many other provisions.

An act creating a Department of State Police with superintendent at $8,000 yearly salary, and salaried deputies and superintendent is to appoint four companies or platoons of state police each consisting of a salaried captain at $1200, four sergeants at $1000, and 50 men at $720 a year, all applicants to pass a physical and mental examination. The police are to be furnished with uniforms, arms, equipment, etc., and have power to make arrests, to act as forest, fire, game and fish wardens and help in detection of crime. Main business will be to draw salary and out of 225 new jobs provided there ought to be enough pull among those faithful to the machine to land a few appointments out of Adams in the State Police.

An act creating Water Supply Commission of Pennsylvania for purpose of drawing salaries and gathering data about the water supply of the state.

Act No. 242 is the famous "Ripper" bill, amending the charter of Philadelphia, so as to take away from the Mayor of that city after 1907 the power to appoint Directors of Public Safety and Public Works, and to give the city council the power to elect these officers. Into the statute books goes with this act about 5 pages of the idiosyncrasies of the world famous idiosyncratic Governor of Pennsylvania and events in Philadelphia have demonstrated the horrible wrong this act would do if it ever becomes operative. A servile city council voted through a gigantic gas steal with the Directors of Public Safety and Public Works using the immense power and influence of their offices to have the councilmen vote as they did, and the people would have been helpless if this act would have been law, but the Mayor dismisses from office these officers to put in place men who will work to prevent the gas steal being consummated.

A mother's love starts a man or woman on the right path. The right remedy at the right time fits a mother for the ordeal. Motherhood is often looked forward to with feeling of great dread by most women. At such a time when she is nervous, dyspeptic, irritable and in need of a uterine tonic—something which will calm the nervous system through the special organs, and a strength builder, she will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription just what is needed. Here is a medicine that has stood the test of a third of a century with approval, in that time it has sold more largely than any other remedy put up specially for women's weaknesses. It is guaranteed by the proprietors not to contain a particle of alcohol—which could only do harm to a sensitive system.

The World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, offer a $500 reward for women who cannot be cured of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, Profluvium or Falling of Womb. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation, biliousness and headache.

For Your Protection

We place this label on every package of Scott's Emulsion. The man with a fish on his back is our trade-mark, and it is a guarantee that Scott's Emulsion will do all that is claimed for it. In Memory of Geo. A. Trostle.

The following sketch of the life of Geo. A. Trostle, who was recently killed at a railroad crossing in Ohio while crossing tracks in conveyance drawn by a pair of horses, is taken from "Piqua Daily Call" and is republished by request:

George A. Trostle was born Nov. 1, 1847, near Bender's Church, Adams county, Pa. He was raised on the farm in a Christian home. On the 17th of Feb. 1874, he was married to Miss Alice Deatrick. To them were born 12 children, 6 sons and 6 daughters. One son died in infancy, the rest are present today to mourn the loss of a faithful father.

Some years after his marriage he moved to Gettysburg, Pa., near which place he worked a farm. Five years ago, March 1, 1900, he moved with his family to Piqua and took up the management of the large Orr farm south of the city. Two years later he moved to his present home and has since been engaged in the work of a teamster in and about Piqua.

The death of his beloved wife several years ago was a great shock to him. He never seemed to get over death of his life-companion.

Mr. Trostle was in practically good health until the day of his death. This came upon him very suddenly and unexpectedly last Saturday afternoon and was a great shock to his family and many friends. His family loses in him a faithful father and an intelligent guide. His church loses a very faithful member of excellent character and a faithful officer, for he was elder of the church at the time of his death. We all mourn for him, but not as they who have no hope. His age was 57 years, 6 months and 6 days. He leaves 6 daughters, 4 of whom are married, 5 sons, 3 brothers, 2 sisters and 5 grandchildren. May the Lord most richly comfort all those who have been so sadly bereaved and help us all so to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom!

The funeral services were held Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, at Zion's Reformed Church. Rev. H. Otte spoke words of comfort based on Psalm 37: 23: "The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord." After the service the body of the deceased was tenderly laid to rest in Forest Hill Cemetery.

Girth Broke and Horses Ran Off.

D. E. Buckey and wife, of Littlestown on Sunday of last week were driving through Midway toward McSherrystown. Samuel Kohler of near New Oxford was driving in same direction at a lively gait when the girth of the harness broke causing the shafts to fly up and starting the horse to run away. The team of Mr. Kohler collided with that of D. E. Buckey, upsetting the latter and throwing occupants to ground. While parties were scratched and bruised no one was seriously injured.

Shoe Button in Nose.

For a year the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Lawrence of Irishtown, has suffered from what was supposed to be catarrh in the head and so treated. Recently the nose became much inflamed. Upon examination a shoe button was found lodged far up in the nostril and was removed and child freed of its suffering.

Cultivating Wild Geese.

Andrew Rudisill of Conowago township, now in his 5th year has a small flock of wild geese which he has been caring for during several years and in which he takes great delight. He finds the peculiar habits of the birds very interesting especially during the hatching season.

THE Citizens Band, of New Oxford, is making preparations to give frequent open air concerts on Centre Square of that town during the summer.

A TRIP TO NEW YORK

SIGHT SEEING FROM THE TOP OF AN AUTO.

An Occult Adventure Followed by Gift of Heirlooms and Wall Street Tip.

Please pardon my intrusion but if you will kindly give a little space in your paper for a letter home about my trip to New York, I shall try to make it interesting to your readers.

Sightseeing in a great city such as this is very exhausting, and it is no small matter to write even this. One of the first things I did on arriving here was to take a trip over the city on top of a big auto, viewing the chief points of interest, among them being Fifth avenue and the homes of the "Four Hundred."

I also noticed with particular interest the new palace that Charles M. Schwab is building on Riverside Drive. It is a beautiful French chateau and has the loveliest situation of any home here, not excepting those of the Astors and the Vanderbilts. It is said that he intends to present it to the city as a museum at his death.

I rode all through Central Park, it is lovely now that all the trees and shrubs are in bloom. In it is the museum of art where one can wonder for hours inspecting the most beautiful pictures and other art objects. Among the most interesting is the famous "Horse Fair" by Rose Bonheur, which is greatly admired by all.

Across the park is the equally interesting Natural History Museum which contains vast collections of minerals, animals, birds and insects, all beautifully mounted and preserved. Near the entrance is the skeleton of old "Jumbo," the famous elephant, but it looks small compared to that of the giant dinosaur one of the greatest of prehistoric monsters. It must have been a terrible looking beast when alive and would have made the fortune of a circus if there were any in these days.

Speaking of circuses reminds me of the Hippodrome, a new place of amusement, which has the largest stage in the world. There I saw a thrilling and most realistic battle scene in which men and horses plunged headlong from a bridge into water and swam for dear life. It was very exciting.

As everyone is interested in the occult nowadays, I will relate a curious experience I had, but will venture no explanation. We heard of a place where they sold toilet goods and instead of trading stamps each customer was given a ticket to a private consultation with a celebrated psychic, or clairvoyant, engaged for the purpose. My curiosity being excited by what I had heard, I invested a dollar and taking my ticket went to the rooms of the seers, but found such a crowd of people that I had to wait two hours before I could see her.

In the excitement I clean forgot the important questions I had intended to ask. But she anticipated me by saying that my husband was interested in a Wall street speculation and would surely lose every dollar he had unless he sold at once. This frightened me, for I had no idea that he was up to anything of the sort. She also said that I had inherited a legacy consisting of valuable heirlooms and that a relative having them in charge was then looking for me. She said that if I would watch the newspapers I would soon learn something of advantage which would lead to my getting the property.

The very next day I saw in the "Herald" a personal asking for information as to the heirs of Malcolm Williams, my grandfather, and signed by my uncle, John Miller, of Vermont. Upon my replying to it he came on at once and turned over to me a fine collection of old family silver, lace and jewels that had been left to me as the nearest heir by his wife at her death a few years ago. On account of the scattering of the family he had long lost sight of all of us.

My husband was so impressed by the prediction coming true that he hastened to order his broker to sell out, he was in the wheat deal, it seems, and was lucky enough to get out at the top of the market, thereby making quite a lot of money. He was so delighted at the result of my "tip" that he gave me a handsome diamond ring from Tiffany's.

I am at present resting at Bath Beach, a pretty suburb of Brooklyn, where my friends who care to write may address me. It is along the water and not very far from Coney Island and when that lively resort gets into full swing I expect to take it all in and will let you have an account of my adventures there later.

Cordially Yours Mrs. Juliette G. Brown.

STATE DEMOCRATIC TICKET

WILLIAM H. BERRY NOMINATED FOR STATE TREASURER.

John B. Head For Superior Court—Personal Registration and Legislative Apportionment the Issue.

On Wednesday, May 24, the Democratic State Convention assembled at Harrisburg to nominate a ticket. Chairman J. K. P. Hall called the convention to order and announced that Representative John G. Harman of Columbia county, had been selected for temporary chairman, who, being introduced, made a rattling good speech. After the calling of the roll, the usual committees on resolutions, permanent organization and credentials were appointed. William J. Brennan of Pittsburg, was chosen chairman of the Resolution Committee.

At the afternoon session the Committee on Permanent Organization reported the selection of J. Thompson Baker of Lewisburg, as permanent chairman. The report was adopted and Mr. Baker took the chair. The Committee on Resolutions had decided by an overwhelming vote that the convention should nominate only one for Superior Court Judge. Some of the delegates wanted to nominate three candidates for judges but listened to the advice of the wise ones, who said one candidate of pre-eminent ability sure to be elected would give the ticket more strength and respect than three candidates, which would enable a corrupt Republican machine to trade so as to select the one of the three of their choice. When the question was raised in convention by a two-thirds vote it was decided to have but one candidate and Adams county voted in favor of one candidate.

The nomination of Wm. H. Berry, a manufacturer of Chester, for State Treasurer was unanimous as there was no opposing candidate. The nomination for Superior Court Judge then went to the western part of the state and John B. Head of Greensburg was nominated on the second ballot.

The Committee on Resolutions reported the following platform which was adopted:

Platform.

The Democracy of Pennsylvania, repeating its pledges of last year, again tenders to the people of the state the power of its organization and the ballots of its voters to rid the Commonwealth and its metropolis of machine domination.

We need not again rehearse the irrefutable indictments of our recent platform convicting the dominant party of the absolute prostitution of every function of government to corrupt, debased, personal partisanship.

Fair-minded citizens of the state admit the truth of these indictments, deplore existing political conditions, and yet heretofore have failed to exercise their power to reform them.

The last session of the legislature was worse than all its predecessors, disappointed every hope of the people and responded with alacrity to every command of the machine. Legislation in the public interest was given no consideration, while schemes of the ring were forced through without debate and sometimes by fraudulent counts of legislators' votes.

Extravagant appropriations were made aggregating millions of dollars beyond the revenues of the state and leaving only the veto power of the governor to save the treasury from bankruptcy.

Reapportion Disregarded.

The constitutional obligation to reapportion the state was utterly disregarded. The demand of the people of all political parties for a fair ballot law was flouted. Salaries were increased and needless offices were created for no other purpose than to reward machine dependents and followers. The established form of government of the chief city of our state was overturned so as to bring its powers more completely under the control of the corrupt and unscrupulous men who have so long dominated it.

The appalling condition of public affairs in that city has long been a matter of wonder to the people of the entire country, and Philadelphia is spoken of with scorn and contempt wherever municipal government is discussed. The people of our state have been amazed at the apparent subservience of that city to a corrupt machine. Public sentiment seemed paralyzed and civic pride dead, as at each succeeding election, by enormous majorities, the people of Philadelphia voted to continue their own debasement. Now as the crowning outrages are about to be heaped upon her and she finds herself bereft of her franchises and property she cries for help.

There is no hope for Philadelphia except in the union of good citizens with the Democratic organization to overthrow her machine government.

To the redemption of Philadelphia this convention hereby pledges the power of the Democratic organization in the state acting through its legislators and of the Democratic organization in Philadelphia with all the votes and power it can command.

Sincerely intent upon the reformation of public affairs, we invite honest men of all parties and organizations to a full union with us.

As the first and important steps to this end we demand:

Want a Fair Ballot Law.

First. The enactment of a fair ballot law which shall provide for personal registration of voters in the cities of the state, for the securing of a free, equal and secret ballot, affording the greatest facility for independent voting, making the appointment of overseers, and the opening of ballot-boxes obligatory whenever demanded by citizens formally charging contented or accomplished fraud.

Under existing laws elections in Philadelphia, affecting the entire state as well, have become a farce and will so continue until these demanded reforms have been secured.

Second. Legislative apportionment as commanded by the constitution to the end that the membership of the legislature may properly represent the voters of the state. The continued refusal of the Republican machine to heed the constitution command is a political crime of first enormity.

These two propositions accomplished needed reforms in many other matters affecting our government will necessarily follow and we therefore present them as the issues of the campaign.

While the officials to be chosen at the coming election will not have power to effect all these reforms, yet a popular rebuke at the polls of our present political domination will do much to eventually overthrow it.

We pledge our candidate for state treasurer to reform the abuses of the treasury, particularly the distribution of the surplus in favorite banks, and we favor the passage of legislation to return this unnecessary accumulation of public money to the people, that local taxation may be reduced.

LOW-RATE TOUR TO DENVER

Via Pennsylvania Railroad, Account International Convention, Epworth League.

On account of the Epworth League International Convention, to be held in Denver, Col., July 5 to 9, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged a tour to Denver under its Personally-Conducted System. A special train of High Grade Pullman equipment will leave New York, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Altoona and Pittsburg on Monday July 5, arriving Denver at 12:30 noon on Wednesday, July 5. Tickets covering round-trip transportation, Pullman accommodations (one berth) going, and all meals in dining car when travelling on special train, will be sold at the following very low rates: New York, $63.50; Philadelphia, $61.75; Baltimore, $60.00; Washington, $60.00; Harrisburg, $59.75; Williamsport, $59.75; Altoona, $58.75; and at proportionate rates from other stations.

These tickets will be good for passage to either Denver, Colorado Springs or Pueblo, and will be good for return passage on regular trains to leave either of the above-mentioned points not later than July 14. Deposit of tickets with Joint Agent at either Denver, Colorado Springs, or Pueblo not later than July 14 and payment of fee of fifty cents secures an extension of return limit to leave either of the above points not later than August 8.

These liberal return limits will enable tourists to take advantage of the many delightful side trips to resorts in the Colorado Mountains, the Yellowstone Park, the Grand Canyon of Arizona and the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland, for which special reduced-rate tickets will be on sale at Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo. For further information concerning specific rates, stop-over privileges, and returning routes consult ticket agents. A descriptive itinerary will be mailed upon application to Geo. W. Boyd, General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, Pa.

On account of the convention of the American Medical Association, to be held in Portland, Ore., July 11 to 14, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will run a personally conducted tour, visiting the beautiful resorts in the Canadian Rockies, Seattle, Tacoma, and Portland, allowing four days in the latter city for attending the sessions of the convention and for visiting the Lewis and Clark Exposition, and five and one-half days in the Yellowstone Park, a full and complete tour of that wonderful land. Tickets covering every necessary expense en route except hotel accommodations in Portland, will be sold at the very low rate of $215 from all stations on the Pennsylvania Railroad, except Pittsburg, from which the rate will be $210. A special train of high-grade Pullman equipment will leave New York, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, and Pittsburg, Monday July 3. The route will be via Chicago and St. Paul to Banff Hot Springs, Laggan, and Glacier, in the Canadian Rockies, thence to the Pacific Coast. Returning the route will lie through the States of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, and Montana, to the Yellowstone Park, and thence via Billings and Omaha to Chicago, reaching New York on July 26. For further information consult Pennsylvania Railroad ticket agents. A descriptive itinerary will be sent on application to Geo. W. Boyd, General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, Pa.

St. Francis Xavier School.

The Entertainment of St. Francis Xavier School on Tuesday evening, May 23, consisted of songs by the young ladies of the school and the pantomime "America," which was well executed by the class of 15 young ladies. The Juvenile Operetta "Market Day" was participated in by the pupils of the Junior and Primary classes. This was the feature of the evening and greatly pleased the audience. The Soloists in the operetta were:

Janet, "The Village Favorite," Margaret Toomey.
Mollie, "A Villager," Anna Eckenrode.
Nora, "A Villager," Marie Brady.
Lettie, "The Orange Girl," Ruth Fleming.
Rocco, "The Organ-grinder," Edwin Codori.
Larrie, "His Sister," Grace Ramer.
Lucette, "The Flower Girl," Gertrude Slouaker.
Tableau, "Good Night."
Pianist was Miss Annie Wisotzky.

Senator Dick of Ohio will be invited to be among speakers.

WISDOM'S WHISPERS.

It's lucky we don't know how un-lucky we may be.
It is difficult to take a woman by surprise in a love affair.

Some people are cranks simply because you can't turn them.
Some men secure all the glory attached to whatever part they assume.

A woman may know very little and yet have a way that carries conviction.
The want of refinement in a man cannot be corrected by the gloss of set phrases.

Some men take on an air of consequence to conceal the weakness of their position.

When a man can hide his thoughts in a smile he holds a powerful weapon of defense.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Where He Made His Money.

Years ago a gentleman settled in the south of England and became very popular in the neighborhood. The country families could never discover how he had made his money, but were satisfied by his solemn assurance that it was not in trade. Nothing could exceed the ordinary gravity of his demeanor, which, indeed, caused him to be placed on the commission of peace, but now and then, without any apparent provocation, he would burst into such a laugh as no one ever heard before except in one place.

Where they could have heard it puzzled the country families for five and twenty years, but at last he was betrayed unconsciously by his own grandchild, who after a visit to a traveling circus innocently exclaimed, "Why, grandpa laughs just like the clown!"—James Farn.

His Sad Love.

"Darn the luck! I lost a peach of an umbrella today."

"Yes, people don't seem to have any conscience about swiping umbrellas. How did you lose it?"

"Well, it was standing against the wall in the restaurant. I kept my eye on it."

"You bet you have to! Well?"

"And just as I was getting up the fellow that owned it came along and took it!"—Cleveland Leader.

At a Disadvantage.

Mr. Goodley—Mrs. Chatters is better, I hear. I'm glad you called on her today, Mrs. Goodley—So am I. I was ushered into her room just as the doctor put the thermometer under her tongue, and so for five full minutes I talked away at her, and she couldn't say a word.

Something Lacking.

"I can shave myself as well as any barber."

"Ah, but you can't talk to yourself while you're doing it!"

Nothing raises the price of a blessing like its removal.—Moore.

My Siberian Prison Love

(Original.)

Tick, tick, tick.
It was my first night in a Siberian prison. But twenty-two years old, on the very threshold of life, and condemned to spend twenty years—from youth to the beginning of old age—in confinement.

Tick, tick, tick.
Some one is rapping on the heating pipe which runs up to the floor above. All political prisoners know the code, and I was not long in spelling out the remainder of a sentence. The beginning I had lost.

"—so lonely."

I must condense two years into a few sentences. The rapper, occupying a cell directly above mine, was a girl, Anna Vronsky, the daughter of a university professor. She had been sent to Siberia for teaching the peasants. She had been placed in solitary confinement and at the time she made my acquaintance was on the verge of insanity. To save her I exerted myself to the utmost, encouraging her, telling her of escapes of which I had heard and of escapes I invented. For this sympathy she was grateful, and I was not long in turning her gratitude to love.

There is nothing like love to stimulate both hope and endeavor. I spent all my time in planning an escape both for her and me. Escape was not impossible, for the prison system was bad and the prison officials corrupt. It was recapture that I feared. To gain time after leaving the prison and by time distance I hit upon the plan of having dummies in our cells.

This plan I communicated to Anna, suggesting that when the guard brought her meals she should always sit in the same position and answer no questions. This was to get the guard used to what a dummy would be. Anna began the process at once, as I did. By our rapping code other prisoners told us that there was an hour, supper time, when one might walk out of the prison unseen; but, as Anna and I could not rely upon escaping at the same time, we were to meet, if possible, at a distant town where exiles having served their terms in prison were permitted to live.

I made a dummy out of my mattress and my bedclothing. Every time my guard appeared I sat with my head bent on my bed as though in melancholy. I arranged by the code with a prisoner at the end of the corridor that at three coughs from me he was to shriek. One evening I gave the signal. The guard, without relocking my cell, hurried to the prisoner. I set up my dummy and walked out. I succeeded in getting out of the prison without being seen except by one man, who supposed I was a privileged convict. It was very dark, and I hid in a corner of the wall. I had noticed from my cell window a place where one could get on a low building with a chance of escape. Finding a piece of scantling in the prison yard, I used it first to climb on the building and next to reach the top of the wall, from which I jumped down and escaped.

My dummy must have worked successfully, for I was not pursued, and if pursued I should surely have been captured. I went to the rendezvous and waited there as long as I dared for Anna Vronsky, but she did not appear. Then I reluctantly made my way to Russia, stopping just beyond the border, where I remained under an assumed name. Indeed, my identity with my former self was unrecognizable. I made a living trading in furs and kept a lookout for escaped prisoners, from some of whom I hoped to hear something of Anna Vronsky.

It seems strange that a man should love and continue to love a girl he has never seen, but there was more between me and my fellow sufferer than between most lovers who had been brought up together. And this is the reason why I remained in what to me was the most dangerous position in Russia, near the Siberian border.

Six years passed. One day I went up to Kara bay to make purchases and on my way back stopped for supper and the night at a little farmhouse, the only occupants being an old woman and her niece. From the moment I saw the niece I felt that she alone could take the place of my imprisoned love. I chatted with the two women till the aunt went to bed. The girl was about to follow her when I fancying from a sadness stamped on her face that she might have suffered as a political prisoner, tapped with a lead pencil on the table from force of habit, spelling words that I had often spelled in prison.

"Anna, I love you!"
The change in the girl before me was astonishing. She turned first white, then a rosy red, catching at the same time at the table.

"Are you?"

"Yes, and you?"

I started forward and clasped her in my arms. Oh, the happiness of that embrace! Except for our hearts beating against each other there was silence. Then I asked her if she would love the real as she had loved the ideal. She said she would.

The woman with whom she lived was no relation to her, and she had been with her only a few months. I took Anna away with me, and we have lived in a comparative wilderness for each other alone ever since. For a time not even our parents knew where we were, but at last we found means to inform them without risk to ourselves or to them. And now since the work we suffered for may be accomplished we are looking forward to the day when we may resume our identities.

ACHED IN EVERY BONE.

Chicago Society Woman Who Was So Sick She Could Not Sleep or Eat, Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

When a woman's kidneys go wrong, her back gives out and every little task becomes a burden. She is tired, nervous, sleepless, run down—suffers daily from backache, headaches, dizzy spells, and bearing-down pains.

Don't worry over imagined "female troubles." Cure the kidneys and you will be well. Read how to find the cure.

Marion Knight, of 33 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill., member of the Chicago Federation of Musicians and a well-known club woman, says: "This winter when I started to use Doan's Kidney Pills I ached in every bone and had intense pains in the kidneys and pelvic organs. The urine was thick and cloudy, and I could barely eat enough to live. I felt a change for the better within a week. The second week I began eating heartily. I began to improve generally, and before seven weeks had passed I was well. I had spent hundreds of dollars for medicine that did not help me, but $6 worth of Doan's Kidney Pills restored me to perfect health."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Miss Knight will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-McBurn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

A RUN OF MARRIAGES

ALMOST ALL LATELY IN EASTERN END OF COUNTY.

For A Month New Oxford Has Had The First Place In Number Of Marriages.

Not that the rest of the county has stopped marrying, but it is a fact that for about one month nearly every bride and groom has been located in three small eastern townships, Berwick, Oxford and Conowingo, and the boroughs located within the confines of these townships. If one place takes the cake over other places in these three townships it is New Oxford and especially last week was this town ahead of all the rest of the county in marriages.

Smith—Marshall.

Joseph M. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Smith of near Irish-town, and Miss Edith Marshall, youngest daughter of Mrs. Susan Marshall of near New Oxford, were married with a Nuptial High Mass in the Church of the Immaculate Conception at 7 o'clock last Tuesday morning, May 28, by Rev. Michael A. Noel an uncle of the bride, of the church of the Gesu, of Philadelphia. Prof. S. P. Noel, another uncle of the bride, of Abbotstown, presided at the organ during the Mass. Miss Alphonzine Smith, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and F. X. Marshall of New York City, brother of the bride, best man.

Three feasts followed. First a wedding breakfast was given the wedding party at the home of the groom's brother, Stanley Smith, near Irish-town. In the evening a reception was given at the home of the bride, followed by a dinner. Next day there was a wedding dinner at the home of the groom and everywhere best wishes were extended them. The young couple received many beautiful presents.

Fleshman—Miller.

On last Thursday morning in the Church of the Immaculate Conception in New Oxford, Rev. Father Thompson celebrated with a Nuptial Mass the bonds of marriage between John C. Fleshman, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Fleshman, of Hotel Oxford, and Miss Ella Irene Miller, daughter of Mrs. Jerome Miller of near New Oxford. The wedding march was played by Miss Mamie Fleshman, sister of the groom as the bridal party entered the church. Miss Emma Weaver and Harry Fleshman, brother of the groom, served as bridesmaid and best man. A wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride, also a reception in the evening.

Elder—Stremmel.

Charles Elder, son of John Elder of Abbotstown, and Miss Minnie Stremmel of Bittinger, were married at 7 o'clock last Tuesday evening at the home of the bride by the Rev. M. J. Roth.

Lobaugh—Crum.

Elmer Lobaugh of Wexville, and Miss Mary Crum of Bendersville, were united in marriage on May 12, Rev. W. W. Hartman of Gettysburg, performing the ceremony.

Forsythe—Arnold.

Charles V. Forsythe and Miss Carrie S. Arnold, both of Franklin township, were married May 18, at Arendtsville, by Rev. T. C. Hesson.

The C. E. Society of McKnightstown will hold a strawberry festival on church lawn Saturday evening June 3. All invited.

A Deer In Rye Field.

Last week a large buck deer ran across the rye field of Emmert Miller in Latimore township, leaping over the tops of the rye with tremendous bounds. John M. Albert was permitted to watch the performance but it is said that he became so excited over the unusual event as to be almost thrown into a state of nervous prostration.

Wild Goose For Dinner.

George Dentler, residing on Harrisburg road at Two Bridges, shot a wild goose one day last week measuring 5 feet 4 inches from tip to tip of wings, and being served next day for dinner was declared to be delicious.

An Annual Custom.

Last Thursday was the annual cleaning up day of the grounds at the Chestnut Grove Church in Latimore township. According to the annual custom a number of male members of the church met that day at the church and cleaned off the rubbish around the place and added much to the appearance of the grounds.

Latest Improvements.

Biglerville does not seem to stand still but keeps moving with improvements, the latest being a concrete pavement put down by Burress H. U. Walter in front of his property on South Main street. Prof. Aaron Sheely of Gettysburg, has placed a new pavement on both Main and Railroad streets in front of his property and this has added very much to the square of the town.

Sprinkler Ordered.

The Woman's Civic Club gave order last week to the L. M. Alleman Hardware Company for a street sprinkler of the best and finest type turned out by the Studenbaker Manufacturing. The L. M. Alleman Hardware Company deserve great credit for generously giving sprinkler to the club without any profit whatever. Rumor says the approximate cost was about $375. At the court house meeting it was stated that the club had $300 in hand. The festival on last Friday evening added about $70 to the sprinkler fund, so that the ladies have the money to pay for sprinkler as soon as needed. It is said the canvassers report enough contributions from people of the town so that sprinkler can start to work upon its arrival.

May Procession.

A very beautiful May procession took place in St. Francis Xavier church on Sunday evening. The order of procession was the following: Standard Bearer, Guard of Honor, Angel bearing crown, Crowners, Act of Consecration (Reader), Two Attendants, 24 little girls wearing Daisy wreaths, Sanctuary Boys, President of Sodality, Treasurer and Sacristan, Children of Mary, School Children, Boys.

The following was the program of services:

Processional Hymn, Litany of Loretta, Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, Tribute by the Little Girls, Crowning of Our Lady's Statue, Bring Flowers, Floral Offering, We Love Thee, Immaculate Mary, Act of Consecration, Magnificat, Address by Rev. Father T. J. Croft, Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, Te Deum, Recessional Hymn, O Mary, Conceived Without Sin.

Grand Army Meets Here Next Year

The annual summer encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in 1906 is assured. Penrose Myers last week obtained sufficient subscriptions to fund for that purpose, so that the delegates from Post 9 Com. P. L. Houck Capt. James T. Long and Nicholas Wierman to the G. A. R. encampment at Reading next week will be able to invite the Grand Army to come here next year and guarantee the necessary expenses and it is believed the invitation to Gettysburg will be accepted.

Ascension Day Services.

Ascension Day Services will be held to-morrow in the church of the Prince of Peace at 10 o'clock in the morning and in the afternoon at 2:30. A large number of the 79 Knights of the Gettysburg Commandery of Knights Templar will attend in their uniform. Rev. Alex McMillan, of St John church, Carlisle, delivering the sermon.

Knife Near Heart.

Joseph, 5 year old son of Geo. A. Miller of New Oxford, while playing on Sunday evening with other boys was pushed against a fence. At the time he had an open knife in his hand and it penetrated the body close to the heart. Dr. J. L. Shultz is in attendance and hopes for recovery of boy.

Love Feast.

The German Baptist will have Love Feast at the Marsh Creek church, on June 10th.

Distress After Eating

Nausea between meals, belching, vomiting, flatulence, fits of nervous headache, pain in the stomach, are all symptoms of dyspepsia, and the longer it is neglected the harder it is to cure it.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Radically and permanently cure it—strengthen and tone the stomach and other digestive organs for the natural performance of their functions.

Accept no substitute for Hood's. "I had dyspepsia twenty-five years and took different medicines but got no help until I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Have taken four bottles of this medicine and can now eat almost anything, sleep well, have no cramps in my stomach, no burning and no distress." Mrs. WILLIAM G. BARNETT, 14 Olney St., Providence, R. I. Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

A PATHETIC DEATH IN YORKSPENT A FORTUNE AND DIED UNDER A CLOUD*A Number of Other Deaths in the Town, County and Elsewhere.*Harry J. Sherman.

Harry J. Sherman, a well known citizen of Hanover died last week in the York jail after living the life of a profligate. Thirty-five years ago he enjoyed wealth. At the death of his father he received a valuable farm of 200 acres and large country home and was estimated to be worth $50,000. He started on a career of ill-starred speculations, rash business ventures and reckless spending. His extravagance was the talk of the neighborhood in which he lived. He frequently amused friends by using ten and twenty dollar bills as cigar lighters. He traveled fast to the inevitable goal, a sheriff's sale. He was recently arrested for an alleged tampering with safe in a business place in Hanover and at the age of 70 was committed to the York county jail. He had been afflicted with asthma and heart disease and on last Tuesday evening as the turnkey approached his room with rations Sherman laughed as he said "Here's where I get some of that good bread, the kind that mother used to make." These were his last words. Gasping he clutched his chest in the region of the heart and fell to the floor. The body was taken to Hanover on Wednesday and funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon with interment in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Hanover. He is survived by a widow and four daughters Mrs. Charles Nau of Littlestown, Mrs. James Weaver of McSherrystown, Mrs. Frank Stokes of Hogshead, Cumberland Co. and Mrs. Ada Grace at home.

Mrs. Calvin Hikes.

Mrs. Calvin Hikes died at her home near Bermudian on Tuesday evening of last week from cancer, of which she had been a terrible sufferer for the last six months. The burial services were held by Rev. Stanley Billheimer last Wednesday evening and funeral services took place on Sunday afternoon. She leaves a husband and six children.

Mrs. Jacob B. Miller.

Mrs. Jacob B. Miller died at her home on Washington Street last Tuesday afternoon, after being confined to her bed for five weeks previous to her death, following an illness of several years from heart trouble, aged 49 years and 25 days.

The funeral was held on Friday afternoon with services at her late home conducted by Rev. W. W. Hartman, of the Methodist church, with interment in the Evergreen Cemetery. She leaves besides her husband eight children, Mrs. Rufus Bushman of this place, Annie of York, Cleveland, Beulah, Minnie, Jacob, Samuel and Howard at home. She is survived by her stepmother Mrs. Samuel Ridinger and brother S. Duffield Ridinger of this place and following step sisters and brothers Mrs. Emory B. Sheads of this place, John and Robert Ridinger of Steelton, Miss Nettie Ridinger of Harrisburg and Miss Lizzie Ridinger of Wilmington.

Mary Marguerite Lawrence.

Mary Marguerite, an infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lawrence of McSherrystown died Monday of last week aged about three weeks.

Emanuel Crouse.

Emanuel Crouse died on Monday night of last week at the home of his son, Augustus Crouse, near St. James church, between Littlestown and Harney, from pneumonia, aged 69 years, 11 months and 1 day. Funeral services were held at St. James church on last Wednesday afternoon with interment in the church cemetery. Rev. C. P. Bastian conducting same. He leaves six sons and four daughters: Ephraim A. Crouse of Mt. Joy township, Jacob S. of Mayberry, Md., Israel H., Samuel C. and Charles W. of Littlestown, Howard R., of York, Mrs. Wm. Brown, of Kingsdale, Mrs. Samuel Fox, of Mt. Joy township, Mrs. George Aulhouse, of Barlow, and Mrs. W. A. Kump of near Emmitsburg.

Harry V. Hemler.

After a long illness Harry V. Hemler, son of ex-County Commissioner George V. Hemler, passed away at his father's home in McSherrystown on last Friday morning aged 24 years, 10 months and 13 days. Consumption and dropsy were causes of his death. During the last 15 weeks he was unable to lie down and reclined in a chair patiently enduring his suffering. He was a bright young man, had been educated in the schools of Mount Pleasant township and taught several years in the public schools of this county. After a course at the Lancaster Business College he secured a position with H. C. Frick Coke Co. and worked for this company in Fayette county and later at Gary, W. Va., where the consumption was contracted. He finally resigned his position and went to Mount Alto Sanitarium in August, 1904, but the disease had gone too far. He is survived by his father, two sisters and four brothers, Sister Philomena, of the convent at Pottsville, Miss Louisa, Martin H., Weldon J., Jerome E. and George F. Hemler at home.

Mrs. Anna M. Wagner.

Mrs. Anna M. Wagner, widow of Levi B. Wagner, late of New Oxford, died on last Thursday at York County Hospital of erysipelas aged about 75 years. The body was taken to New Oxford and funeral took place on last Saturday, Rev. George Lauffer conducting services and interment in New Oxford Cemetery. She leaves a son, A. E. Buckminster of Hanover, a daughter, Mrs. C. W. Kehm of New Oxford, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Sherman of New Oxford.

Mrs. Susan Wright.

Mrs. Susan Wright, mother of Vincent H. Prosser, proprietor of the Central Hotel of this place, died in McConnellsburg May 18 after being confined to her home for a long time at the advanced age of 84 years. She was twice married, Mr. Prosser and a brother in Bedford county being children of first marriage. The funeral was on Saturday May 20.

Mrs. Birdie Myers.

Mrs. Birdie Myers, wife of Charles Myers, formerly of Bendersville but now an employee of Chain Works, Carlisle, died last Thursday in latter place after a thirteen weeks' illness with tuberculosis in her 28th year. She is survived by her husband and four year old daughter Muriel. The body was taken to Bendersville and interred there last Saturday morning, services in Lutheran Church of that place.

Solomon Grimes.

Solomon Grimes, a veteran of the Civil War, who has a brother in this county, was found dead in bed near Rouzerville last week. He was 62 years of age.

Mrs. Mary Emig.

Mrs. Mary Emig, after an illness of three weeks, died last Friday in York at age of 77. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Sarah Neller, with whom she made her home, and Mrs. Isabel Reber of Littlestown.

Light on Sheriff's Costs.

For a number of years there has been a contention as to whether County Commissioners and Sheriff, of this county, when the latter would hand in his bill, specially as to the expenses of taking prisoners to Philadelphia or elsewhere.

This contention has extended back to Sheriff Morrison's term and the previous board of commissioners. The bills were always however settled in an amicable way.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania decided a case last week that should make unnecessary any future trouble between the officers. Sheriff Peeling sued York County for certain costs and Supreme Court sustained his claims which mean:

That the sheriff may collect ten cents per mile going and coming for taking prisoners to the State institutions.

That the sheriff may hire a cab, or cabs at Philadelphia to take the prisoners from the depot to the penitentiary or other institutions to which he goes.

That the sheriff may take two days to go to Philadelphia, one going and one coming.

That one deputy shall accompany each prisoner or person in custody.

That the county shall be liable for the actual expenses of the deputies who accompany a sheriff, including hotel bills.

The Dangerous Hitching Post.

Geo. Smith, of E. I. Bushey, blacksmith, at Latimore. One day recently Harvey Trostle of York Springs called at the shop to have a horse shod. When work was done Messrs. Bushey and Trostle went into former's stable and George decided to take a ride, so getting into the Trostle buggy he drove down the road until he struck the hitching post in front of W. E. Brough's store, tearing the double tree off the spread which had to be repaired before Mr. Trostle could go home.

Big Pigeon Loft.

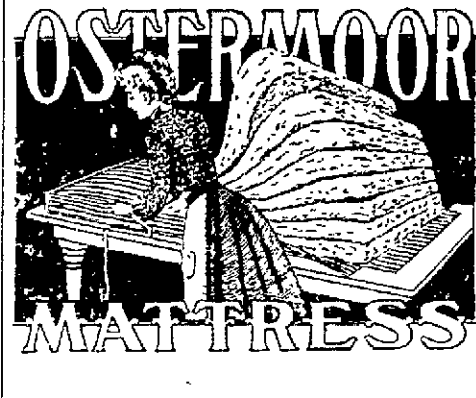

R. E. Bosserman of East Berlin, has recently constructed what is declared to be the largest pigeon loft in the lower part of the county, his purpose being to breed for the squab market.

DANCING PILGRIMS.

The Annual Carnival of the "Saints"
of Echternach.

On every succeeding Whitsun Tuesday from time immemorial 19,000 to 20,000 pilgrims of both sexes and of every age and condition of life dance for four or five hours at Echternach, in the grand duchy of Luxembourg, to an unmistakable polka tune and an apparently nonsensical refrain. The central figure of this great Echternach "springprozeession" is St. Willibrord, who migrated from Northumberland to the frontiers of the Black forest twelve centuries ago. Emperors and kings have in vain forbidden the "saints" of Echternach to indulge in their annual carnival.

With the peasantry of East Luxemburg and Biffel the "springprozeession"
is as popular today as it was in 1131.
When King Lothaire came to pray at St. Willibrord's tomb. The simple minded dwellers on the banks of the Sure and the Moselle are firmly convinced that their best hope of freedom from nervous diseases in this world and eternal salvation in the next lies in this mystic dance of five steps forward and two backward, by which, after three hours' indescribable toil, they cover the two or three miles intervening between the starting point, at which the pilgrims receive the episcopal blessing and the goal at the steps of St. Will-

KNOWLEDGE AND CULTURE.

The Two Do Not Necessarily Walk
Hand In Hand.

High marks in examinations depend upon a trained memory and a power
of acquiring irrelevant information.
Culture, on the contrary, is a sympathetic assimilation of the best in the realm of thought and achievement.
Culture is a slower process and a deeper,
and its reward strikes further in.
Assimilation of the best that has been thought and accomplished affects not merely the brain, but the character—the whole spirit of a man. Culture implies a soil plowed and fertilized,
where whatever seed falls has the better chance for growth. Information even in vast quantities, so long as it remains mere information, used for purposes of passing examinations, need not affect the manners nor the morals of a man; both may remain hopelessly lax in an encyclopedian mine of facts. But culture affects primarily the manners and the morals.
A cultured gentleman has external methods of getting on with his kind;
he has the true sense of relationship,
the feeling that all he can learn to feel or to be is not for himself, but for service; he knows himself in a network of human inter-relations. In the end the test of knowledge is not examination marks; it is living.—Harper's Weekly.

THE WOOLSACK.

It is in the House of Lords and Yet
Is Not a Part of It.

It is a curious fact that the woolsack
on which the lord chancellor sits in the British house of lords is not, strictly speaking, in the house of lords, and this is why when the lord chancellor rises to take part in debate he first of all moves away from the woolsack to his own place as a peer before he speaks.

The fact, too, explains why noble lords who desire to avoid voting sometimes merely withdraw to the wool-sack, where, not being in a parliamentary sense within the house, they are not counted in a division.

Again, though the lord chancellor is now invariably a peer, he is not necessarily so, and as a matter of fact the office has been held several times in the past by commoners. In such cases the lord chancellor could take no part in debate, not having a place in the house
as a peer, and his functions as speaker were strictly limited to the putting of questions and other formal proceedings regulated by precedent from the woolsack.

The Copts of Egypt.

The Copts in Egypt are the bookkeepers and scribes; they are also the jewelers and embroiderers. Their ancient tongue has fallen into disuse
and is practically a dead language.
They now use Arabic, like all the rest of the nation, but the speech survives
in their church service, a part of which is still given in the old tongue,
though it is said that even the priests
themselves do not always understand what they are saying, having merely learned the sentences by heart, so that they can repeat them as a matter of form.

New Zealand Animals.

Experts say that probably there is no country in the world where imported species of animals, wild and domestic,
have flourished as they have done in New Zealand. The red deer grow to over 300 pounds in weight in the forests, the trout to twenty pounds in the rivers. The sheep have not expanded to any great size, but they multiply at a faster rate than elsewhere. They grow a finer wool and a better mutton.

Flatterings.

Young Featherbottom—If your parents still oppose our marrying why can't we elope? Miss Sharpe-Chinn—It would never do in the world. Everybody who knows us both would say at once that I suggested it.—Chicago Tribune.

An Account to Settle.

The Lawyer—Madam, I find that your husband's will leaves you nothing but what the law compelled him to leave you. The Widow (angry and forgetful)—Just wait till I see him!

The soul asks honor, not fame; to be upright, not successful; to be good, not prosperous; to be essentially, not outwardly, respectable.—Woman's Life.

The Changed Bag

[Original.]

How it happened I can't explain. I remember being at the give counter and laying my shopping bag on the counter. Then I went to the other end, where there was a lady for whom I was obliged to wait before getting room. I bought a pair of gloves, opened my bag and put them in. I did so without looking into the bag. I passed the lady for whom I had waited. She was standing at the end of the counter
I had first visited, and I remember seeing a bag before her that looked so like mine that I looked down to discover if I had my own bag in my hand and saw that it was an exact duplicate of the one before the lady. I thought nothing of this, for they were a very common type.

When I got home I tossed it into a closet. The next day, before going out with it, I opened it to put in some samples. I was surprised to find in it a purse containing $20, a few samples and a letter, the envelope of which was missing. Eager to learn what these things meant, I read the letter. It ran:

Dear Julie—Meet me Thursday afternoon (3:15) at the northeast angle of the open square. I shall disguise myself as an old man. Wear the costume of an old woman. Mary doesn't suspect anything.
GILBERT.

I was petrified with horror. I was Mary; Gilbert was my lover. The writing was disguised, but the longer
I looked at it the more I was convinced that it was a bad attempt to conceal the hand of Gilbert Merriman. I glanced at the clock. I had just half an hour to get to the place of meeting.

When I reached the square the clock in St. Paul's spire stood at 3:10. I walked to the northeast angle, drawing a heavy veil down over my face,
through which I could see, but not be recognized. I concluded to sit on one of the benches and wait. Several women came in, but they were all young and passed on. Five minutes before the appointed time an old woman came by with a basket of apples on her arm. As she passed me I asked if she would sell me one. She held out her basket for me to choose, but did not speak. I looked into her face and felt sure that I had caught my bird.

"Julie?" I asked.

She gave a repressed shriek.

"You and Gilbert are mistaken in thinking Mary does not suspect. You must have lost Gilbert's letter, for Mary has it and will be here—perhaps is here now—to expose you. As soon as he comes both of you follow me. I will take you to a place where you can confer in safety."

"Dear, dear woman, how kind you are! There he is now. I'll go and tell him."

An old man, much bent and leaning heavily on his cane, came in at a side entrance, to the square, and the old woman hastened toward him. They stood talking excitedly, the man looking at me with evident suspicion. The woman was apparently begging him to do as I had suggested, but he appeared to be of a different mind. A policeman happened to stroll by, and the man called to him and said something to him, and they both started for me, followed by the woman.

I began to be frightened.

When they reached me the old man called to "Julie" to come forward.

"Is that your bag?" he asked.

"Heavens, yes! I didn't notice it before."

In my excitement at my discovery of the letter on leaving the house I had snatched up the bag with its contents,
and there it was hanging to my wrist.
The old man took it from me and opened it.

"Here's your property," he said to the woman, "and here's the thief. Take her along, policeman."

"Not unless you'll agree to appear against her."

The man promised, giving his name and address. I was startled to hear him say not Gilbert Merriman, but George Gilbert. The policeman took the bag and its contents and—great heavens!—marched me to the police station.

The only person in the world on whom I could rely to help me out of the scrape was Gilbert Merriman. I raved that I would be tried and convicted as a thief rather than send for him. Indeed, they took me to the very door of a cell before I succumbed.
One look inside the horrid place was enough.

"Wait," I said. "I'll send for a friend."

They took me back to the office, gave me pencil and paper, and I wrote a note to Gilbert begging him to come to me at once. The messenger was a long while finding him, and when he came I was ready to collapse. I never shall forget the look of pained wonder on his face when he saw me.

"What in the world is the meaning of—"

"Oh, Gilbert, I've been very silly.
Yesterday I changed bags while shopping with a woman at a store. There was a note in the bag I picked up,
signed 'Gilbert' to a girl named Julie, appointing to meet her in the park. I went there expecting to catch you. Instead I—"

"Caught a tartar."

He went to the desk and explained the matter to the inspector. Then he returned to me and led me out, everyone present laughing at me. I red as a cock's comb from my neck to my hair.

Gilbert was perfectly lovely to me about the matter, never referring to it, but I never can forget it. As for the other couple, the man gave a false
name and never appeared against me,
nor did they claim the bag or its contents.

PRIVATE COINAGE.

At One Time It Was Quite Common
In This Country.

The history of the issue of coins in this country by private individuals and companies would make a very interesting book. When gold was struck in North Carolina a man named Bechtler started a mint of his own there, which was abolished by law in 1819. Half eagles, quarter eagles and one dollar pieces issued by him were largely circulated in the south and west. Although of honest gold, they were about 2½ per cent under value on an average.

About the same time Templeton Reid coined gold in Georgia. He moved to California in 1849 and minted eagles
and twenty-five dollar pieces on a considerable scale. Many companies and refineries in California and elsewhere made a business of striking gold coins
during the same period. Naturally there was a great temptation to make these coins under weight and of inferior fineness. The Mormons in Utah issued eagles, half eagles and double eagles which bore on the obverse an eye, with the legend, "Holiness to the Lord."

Quantities of twenty-five cent and fifty cent gold pieces were likewise manufactured at San Francisco, the former containing only about six cents'
worth of the metal and the latter twelve cents' worth. Years ago a lot of these were taken over to Germany and circulated there, which elicited a formal diplomatic protest from that government. The private minting business was finally stopped.

A FISH THAT FIGHTS.

The Aggressive and Iridescent Plakat of Siam.

So aggressive is the plakut, a little fish from Siam, that the entertainment
it affords has become a national pastime. The fishes are trained to go through regular battles and are reared artificially for the purpose, while the license to exhibit them to the general public is farmed out and brings a large amount of money into the royal coffers.

They are kept in aquariums built for the purpose and fed upon the larvae of mosquitoes and every possible care taken of them. When the fish is in a quiet state, with the fins at rest, the dull colors are not at all remarkable.
But if two are brought together or within sight of each other, or even if one sees its own image in a looking glass, the little creature becomes suddenly excited.

The fins are raised, and the whole body shines with metallic luster and colors of dazzling beauty, while the protecting gill membrane, waving like a black frill round the throat, makes grotesque the general appearance. In this state of irritation it makes repeated darts at its real or reflected antagonist. If two are placed together in a tank they rush at each other with the utmost fury. The battle is kept on until one is killed or put to flight, but not until they are entirely separated does the victor shut his gaudy fins, that like flags of war, have never lowered until peace has been declared.

Poles and Russians.

Hugo Ganz in his book on Russia
writes as follows of the relations existing between the Russian officials and the Poles: "They remain separate, like oil and water. The Russian, even though he is the master, is of no consequence here. It is only necessary to observe for the space of an hour from some corner of the elegant dining room of the hotel the behavior of the Polish society and the complete isolation of the Russian officers or officials. It is only necessary to be able to distinguish the groups from one another—the Baltic nobility with their almost bourgeois families, merchants from all the principal countries, Russian functionaries and Polish society—and it will at once become clear who is at home here,
firmly rooted to the soil, so that all others become strangers and intruders. It is the Poles, and the Poles alone."

Convenient.

There was once in a North Carolina court a case that has gone down as history in the judicial annals of the state. It appears that a debtor named Jenkins, when solicited to close an old open account by note, agreed to do so provided he should be allowed to draft
the instrument. This was granted him, whereupon he presented the creditor
with the following:
"I, Samuel Jenkins, agree to pay
John Huggins $200 whenever convenient, but it is understood that said Jenkins is not to be pushed. Witness my hand and seal this day of —, Samuel Jenkins."—Harper's Weekly.

Better Than His Own.

They were discussing the factors which make for success in the world
when the knowing young man said:

"There's nothing like force of character. Now, there's Jones! Sure to make his way in the world. He's a will of his own, you know."

"But Brown has something better in his favor."

"What's that?"

"A will of his uncle's."

Down on His Luck.

"Oh, John," she exclaimed as she observed him getting into his overcoat, "I hope you're not going to be out again tonight!"

"I hope not," he replied absentmindedly,
"but it's quite likely. The cards have been running very badly for me lately."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Mean Way It Works.

"If you refuse to marry me," said
the wealthy old man, "I shall pine away and die."

"Of course," responded the girl bitterly. "And if I would marry you you would hang to life like a bulldog. But that's the way it goes."—Detroit Tribune.

GAMBLING IS BEING GUNNED FOR IN McSHERRYSTOWN.

Accidents—Mike Gets a Long Gash—Kicked by Horse—Hand Horrible Bitten by Dog.

It seems to be a matter that is conceded that gambling is prevalent in McSherrytown and events of last week show that justice V. H. Lilly, of that town, is prepared to go gunning for the gambler, to break up this species of lawlessness. On information of George R. Gorden of that place, Virgil Weaver, of McSherrytown, Frank Weaver, Paul Emmert and Howard Treiber, of Midway, were arrested for gambling and given a hearing last week. Though defendants were discharged for want of sufficient evidence Justice Lilly gave them a severe reprimand, calling attention to the fact that gambling is altogether to common in that neighborhood and that it is a violation of the laws of the State, of all religious organizations as well as the laws of society and the practice must be broken up. He also scored the prosecutor and warned him if he was ever brought before him on a similar charge he would receive the full extent of the law.

The Irishman who answers to the name of "Mike," employed at Bittinger's Line Kiln, fell from a walk leading to the new Valley View Hotel, at Bittinger, and cut a long gash on his forehead which took fourteen stitches to close.

One day last week the spring wagon of plumber Geo. F. Bender, of McSherrytown, accidentally ran over a boy, Charles Gouker of same place, who immediately jumped to his feet and asked whether any spokes were broken out of the wheels. The boy was none the worse for his experience.

Michael Hoffman, 14 year old son of Mrs. Mary Hoffman, of Bittinger, employed on the farm of Peter Laughman, near New Oxford, was kicked in the face by a horse last week, his jaw being cut at several places and is at home of his brother, attended by Dr. Combs of New Oxford.

Henry Fickel, of Latimore township, was recently attacked by a dog of Charles Jacobs of same township. The dog, it is said, jumped at Mr. Fickel's throat, and to avoid danger of being bitten he made an attempt to get over a fence and as he grabbed the top rail the dog grabbed his hand, biting him terribly between thumb and index-finger. The bleeding could not be checked until Dr. E. W. Cashman, of York Springs, arrived and dressed the wound, which required several stitches to close.

Letters From the People

Phillips, Me. May 1, 1902. A few years ago I chilled my blood from which I suffered greatly. I have been using Baxters Mandrake Bitters and find it just what I have been looking for. It has helped me more than any other medicine yet. I can say that anyone who gives Baxter's Mandrake Bitters a trial will not afterwards be without it.

GOOD SPIRITS.—Good spirits don't all come from Kentucky. Their main source is the liver—and all the fine spirits ever made in the Blue Grass State could not remedy a bad liver or the hundred-and-one ill effects it produces. You can't have good spirits and a bad liver at the same time. Your liver must be in fine condition if you would feel buoyant, happy, and hopeful, bright of eye, light of step, vigorous and successful in your pursuits. You can put your liver in fine condition by using Green's August Flower—the greatest of all medicines for the liver and stomach and a certain cure for dyspepsia or indigestion. It has been a favorite household remedy for over thirty-five years. August Flower will make your liver healthy and active and thus insure you a liberal supply of "good spirits." Trial size, 25-cent bottles, 75c. At Hagerstown, Md.

RHEUMATISM CURED IN 24 HOURS.
—T. J. Blackmore, of Hall's & Blackmore, Pittsburg, Pa., says: "A short time since I procured a bottle of Mystic Cure. It got me out of the house in 24 hours. I took to my bed with Rheumatism nine months ago and the Mystic Cure is the only medicine that did me any good. I had five of the best physicians in the city, but I received very little relief from them. I know the Mystic Cure to be what it is represented and take pleasure in recommending it to other poor sufferers." Sold by Peoples Drug Stores.

SAVED BY DYNAMITE.—Sometimes a flaming city is saved by dynamiting a space that a fire can't cross. Sometimes, a cough hangs on so long, you feel as if nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Gray, of Calhoun, Ga., writes: "My wife had a very aggravated cough, which kept her awake nights. Two physicians could not help her; so she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which eased her cough, gave her sleep and finally cured her." HOW TO WARD OFF OLD AGE.—The most successful way of warding off the approach of old age is to maintain a vigorous digestion. This can be done by eating only food suited to your age and occupation, and when any disorder of the stomach appears take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets to correct it. If you have a weak stomach or are troubled with indigestion, you will find these Tablets to be just what you need. For sale by J. H. Huber.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.—Mr. C. B. Wainwright of Lemon City, Fla., has written the manufacturers that much better results are obtained from the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in cases of pains in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus by taking it in water as hot as can be drunk. That when taken in this way the effect is double in rapidity. "It seems to get at the right spot instantly," he says. For sale by J. H. Huber.

MRS. GEO. W. MILLER, of Abbotstown, is recovering from a serious illness with erysipelas. A daughter was sick at same time.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY THE VERY BEST.—"I have been using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and want to say it is the best cough medicine I have ever taken," says Geo. L. Chubb, a merchant of Harlan, Mich. There is no question about its being the best, as it will cure a cough or cold in less time than any other treatment. It should always be kept in the house ready for instant use, for a cold can be cured in much less time when promptly treated. For sale by J. H. Huber.

CHARLES RUDSILL, of Mt. Joy township, lost a valuable cow last week from bloating.

WHY SUFFER FROM RHEUMATISM?

—Why suffer from rheumatism when one application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm will relieve the pain? The quick relief which this liniment affords makes rest and sleep possible, and that alone is worth many times its cost. Many who have used it hoping only for a short relief from suffering have been happily surprised to find that after awhile the relief became permanent. Mrs. V. H. Leggett of Yum Yum, Tennessee, U. S. A., writes: "I am a great sufferer from rheumatism, all over from head to foot, and Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that will relieve the pain." For sale by J. H. Huber.
